

FORGIVENESS IMPROVS

Cut into strips, fold the strips and place them in a bowl or hat.

1. Player A and Player B are best friends. Player A discovers Player B lied to him/her. Player A confronts Player B with the lie.
2. Player B and another friend intentionally didn't invite Player A to a party. Player A found out about it. Player A sees Player B at school and goes to talk to him/her about it.
3. Player A and Player B have been dating for two months. Player B finds out that Player A has cheated on him/her with someone else. Player B goes to Player A's house to confront him/her.
4. Player A and Player B are good friends. Player B recently got drunk at a party. Player A is the child of an alcoholic father and is very angry at Player B because their friendship felt like the only part of his/her life not affected by alcohol. Player B tries to talk to Player A about it.
5. Player A and Player B are supposed to be good friends. Player A overheard Player B making fun of him/her with a group of their friends.
6. Player A and Player B both received in-house suspension for cheating on a final exam. Player A is guilty. Player B is not, but got into trouble because Player A made it look like he/she was.
7. Player B heard a very embarrassing rumor about Player A. Player B doesn't believe it but decides to ask Player A.
8. Player A discovered that Player B broke into his/her locker at school. Player A confronts Player B after school.
9. Player A and Player B are dating. Player A stood up Player B for a date last week. The next day, Player A told Player B there was a family emergency. Later, Player B found out Player A was out with friends.
10. Player A and Player B were hanging out at lunch with a bunch of students. Player B was bragging so Player A confronted Player B. After an uncomfortable silence, the group dispersed and only Player A and Player B are still there.